
teaching shading and value Home ed digest issue 528

Posted by home-ed - 2008/07/02 02:15

school board level. We have opted to have our son play for our township's atheletic association. He's in baseball and will play soccer this fall. He can also play football if he wants. Anyone living in the township can participate. We've also signed him up to play sports at the YMCA, he plays basketball there now and wants to play indoor soccer with them. We've got our daughter signed up for Lollipop soccer through a local league that we found for 4&5 year olds. (It's cute, 3 men and a goalie on the field for each team, small field, it's mostly to learn how to play for now, no serious competition until they are much older) We found this via a friend, but we see things in the community paper as well. Try a local recreation commision, they usually can point you in the direction of leagues in the area that are independent from the schools. Marti mgard...@cincom.com Southwest Ohio Trust in God, but lock your car doors

=====