

---

game show casting Wipeout

Posted by Seerialmom - 2008/07/02 02:30

---

MXC is currently shown on Spike TV , MXC stands for Most Extreme Elimination Challenge. From what I recall the show was real in Japan, it was brought over to the US and dubbed with American voices who made up names for the contestants and descriptions of what they do for a living, fun. They also dub the voices of the contestants. Here's a best of MXC on YouTube: <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=P4VomlmtzVw> Sadly, the redubbed version is far superior to the original.

=====

game show casting Wipeout

Posted by Seerialmom - 2008/07/02 02:30

---

I thought the I Survived a Japanese Game Show was ok, I agree it was a little slow out the gate but as these fish out of water Americans come to grips that this is the show they signed up to do (the premise was they had no idea what or where they were going), it should be more fun. Especially if they focus more on the game show than the housing arrangements and related bickering. What bickering? The contestants for this show didn't seem like the usual drama queens and famewhoring assholes one sees on most reality shows...

=====

game show casting Wipeout

Posted by Seerialmom - 2008/07/02 02:30

---

I would be willing to pay real money to see both male and female *ANOREXICS* try to complete on this TV show. *curmudgeon* The best read illiterate in the country What do you mean? They might be pretty athletic, for all you know. The ones who went the furthest were the go-go dancer (I didn't know they still had those), the cop, the jazz dancer and the funny black guy, can't remember what his nickname was....weren't they? I might not have the final 4 right. N. You mean the guy who didn't want to get wet ;)

=====

game show casting Wipeout

Posted by Ubiquitous - 2008/07/02 02:30

---

I suspect some behind-the-scenes shenanigans. Like they were told to act surprised and pretend like they didn't know they were going abroad. Eh, could be.

=====

game show casting Wipeout

Posted by Ubiquitous - 2008/07/02 02:30

---

What bickering? The contestants for this show didn't seem like the usual drama queens and famewhoring assholes one sees on most reality shows... Give them time. The claws will come out...there was a hint of that last night when they were deciding who to pit against each other for the elimination challenge. I don't know the names yet but the girl with the long brown hair and the expressive eyebrows definitely seems like a rabble-rouser. True, but I didn't see any obvious reality show archtypes in the first ep, with the possible exception of the Jersey Girl who took her sweet ol' time preparing for rickshaw duty.

=====

game show casting Wipeout

Posted by David - 2008/07/02 02:30

---

Oh my. That was incredibly stupid. And yet really really great.

=====

---

game show casting Wipeout

Posted by edith walter - 2008/07/02 02:30 for a living, fun. They also dub the voices of the contestants. Here's a best of MXC on YouTube:

---

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=P4VomImtzVw> Sadly, the redubbed version is far superior to the original. No argument there. MXC is hilarious. But it's still fun to have something silly like this on network TV in the US for those without cable.

=====